Local and General

Did you hear the fire bell?

McKay Bros. sold their farm west of town this week to Mr. Treas, of Calgary.

Citizens of Crossfield will please remember the special meeting in the Fire Hall to-night at 8 o'clock.

Miss Frost has assumed her duties as teacher in the Public school here in place of Miss Giesner resigned.

Mrs. Timmins was "At Home" to a few of her friends on Thursday evening. A most enjoyable time was spent in playing Whist.

Mr. E. L. Bivins is attending the Convention of Associated Farmers this week, as a delegate from the Agricultural Society.

James Cox, who has been spending the past six weeks with relatives and friends in Saskatchewan, returned to Crossfield yesterday.

Two new phones were installed
last week by the men who were here,
one being at the residence of Mr.
E. S. McElroy, in North Crossfield, and another in V. W. W.'s implement warehouse.

M. J. S. has been advised of a painful injury to his right arm. Money was received from an insurance policy. With this money he has been able to get on his feet and is now in the hospital and his knee against the wall.
On the other side, the wound which is causing him considerable pain.

Mr. L. E. Davies, formerly Editor of the Carstairs Journal, paid a visit to his farm east of Crossfield on Monday. Mr. Davis has ordered a large job printing plant which he will install in Calgary, and will endeavour to show the ones there something new about competition.
We wish him success.

A pair of young Shire Stallions consigned to Mr. Stewart Walker of Bever Dam, will leave England on the 14th inst. for Crossfield.

It will be remembered that Mr.
Walker received a consignment of fine horses last spring, and we understand that these will be even better than those he imported last year.

Crossfield experienced a slight fire scare on yesterday morning when the furnace in the Park restaurant set fire to the floor of the building, and although there was considerable smoke no serious damage was done, the fire being put out without the aid of the engines, one of which however was on the job in case it was needed. It is safe to say that only about half of the people in town heard the alarm, which goes to prove that the bell has not been properly put up, and should be given immediate attention.

A grand Concert under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Church of England will be given in the I. O. O. F. Hall next Monday evening at 8-30 p. m. Miss Frances Stewart, Gold Medalist, of Lundell, winner of open competition at the Alberta Musical Festival, Mr. and Mrs. Scholfield, and Mr. Thos. Magee and others will comprise the special features of the evening. A play entitled "My Turn Next," by Crossfield amateurs will also be given. This play will also be given at the Batten school on Friday the 16th inst. Proceeds will go in aid of the Church of England.

CURED ACES AND PAINS LIKE MAGIC

WHEN HE USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS FOR RHEUMATISM

Saskatchewan man tells of quick relief after three years of suffering.

Holbeck, Sask.—Among the many on the prairies who are shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills none speak with more enthusiasm than Mr. Matt. Syverson, a well-known resident of this place.

"I suffered from Rheumatism for three years," Mr. Syverson says; "and I was also troubled with an acute pain around my heart. My case was a serious one and several times I doubted if recovery was possible, but seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me completely."

"I can truly and honestly recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for cases like mine. They surely cleared out all my aches and pains as it by magic."

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid, in the blood. When the kidneys are right they strain all the uric acid out of the blood. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the kidneys right. That is why they never fail to cure Rheumatism and kindred diseases.

THE "TRIUMPH"—BRITAIN'S CHAMPION MOTORCYCLE

Although this is our first Mail Order announcement of Motorcycles and Automobile Supplies, we are by no means unfamiliar with this branch of business. As an organization we probably number more men possessing firsthand experience with motor engines than any in the country. We have a splendidly equipped Garage and Motor Sales Department, where information of the most practical nature has been gathered for some years past. Our buyers in their travels become familiar with all the American and British models, so that we have a wealth of experience to guide us in selecting the Motorcycles best suited to Western Canada.

Our final choice gives us two machines that are absolutely the highest grade in the market, possessing speed, reliability and endurance in an unusual way. We have priced them at our customary narrow margin of profit, and we offer them for sale supported by our liberal guarantee—money back in full if not satisfactory on arrival.

WE SELL THE CELEBRATED CHALMERS AUTOMOBILE IN MANITOBA. WRITE US FOR DESCRIPTION OF THE CHALMERS "30" at $1,950.00.

NOTE PARTICULARLY

We have in stock at Winnipeg a complete line of Automobile Supplies and Repairs. Every purchaser of our Motor Cycles or Automobiles can depend on us for protection on this important point.

The year 1912 will see an enormous increase in the number of Motor Cycles used in Western Canada. Last year the West led the world in speed and demonstrated most forcibly that the Motor Cycle has taken front rank as a reliable and rapid means of travel over Western roads.

Our 1912 prices will make the Motor Cycle a present possibility to hundreds of men, who have heretofore not given it serious consideration. We shall be pleased to hear from men who can use a Motor Cycle for business or pleasure, and who have the cash to pay for one at our very reasonable prices. Full information on request.

Correspondence.

To the Editor,
 Dear Sir,

It behoves us to show our appreciation for the services of the many bright young men who are giving their lives to the railroads of this continent, in the facilitation of the commercial, industrial, and agricultural interests of this country.

In my broad and lengthy experience as a railroad man over this continent I have never met a more genial, proficient and efficient one than H. A. Schumann, who is soon to leave us.

It needs no further explanation than that we should present him with a token of appreciation for his excellent services, sobriety, reliability and good conduct as a man.

As he and his family shortly leave this cross and field, we hope our loss will be their gain, and that their cross may be twined with roses, their fields made to produce bountifully of the chief necessities of life, and their home and fire-side crowned with success, sobriety and loving kindness, treasures from the Father of our home-which we and all wish them.
 Thos. Fitzgerald.

Director's Meeting

At a meeting of the directors of the Agricultural Society, held on Friday afternoon last, the Prize list was up for discussion. It may be said that the prize offered this year will be far ahead of any previously offered. It is the intention to increase the number of classes from 25 to 31, and also to increase the amount of premiums offered.

Be co-operative help those who help you and come forward

Va'dictory

Friday afternoon the pupils of the Crossfield school gave a Farewell concert to their Principal, Miss Greener, previous to her departure to her home in the East.

The girls of the school decorated the walls and boards of the class room and prepared the program, which consisted of dialogues, songs, recitations etc. All the pupils were present as were a number of visitors, all of whom enjoyed themselves very much. At the close a little address was read by one of the girls, wishing her Bon Voyage, and all good wishes.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

ANY person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the nearest Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.
 Duties.—Six months' residence upon cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, fully owned and occupied by him or his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties.—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from the date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00

CHAPTER VII.

The sexton unlocked the wooden gate which led into the church porch and asked Harry to seat himself within. It was evident that he relished having to relate the story of the tragedy, and that it was a task that he performed as frequently as possible. "You're a stranger, sir," he began, "maybe you haven't heard tell of the Clavels of Crayborne and Lyllyngton Court."

"Very little," "In wold times 'tis said half Do'et belonged to 'em. But narn of 'em could save; they were all girt at feast and spenden." "Tis said a Clavel rides to death," and that was their way in everything. "I'm a Christian man, as you can see, and I'm not afraid of wold wives' tales. But 'tis said that hereabouts, Bluff King Hat (him as had too much to drink, and was in shorter by a head) took Lodars Abbey there, and drust out the monks had given it to Anne Boleyn's page, Mr. Anthony Clavel, the abbot he put a curse upon the Clavels. 'I gite the Clavels to the devil,' he says, 'and I will see he gets 'em. For though they drive my body out, my spirit shall remain in Lodars Abbey so long as there's a stone left on 'em.'"

"'Tis Lodars Abbey near here?" Harry asked.

The sexton jerked his thumb over his shoulder.

"Half a mile away," he replied. "Tis there the Lady Anne Daubeney is a livin', poor soul!"

"How can she live there if it be to the Clavels?" Harry inquired in surprise.

"Lady Anne she rents it of the trustees, sir. An' there's a wold widge! Lady lives w' her," 'tis said. But her a man has been inside the lodges lately to see her. Only Annin's the farmer's brother, and the maids at the Abbey, that are all foreigners and yafers, by 'tween, an' a serjeant who comes over from Seacombe. And there Lady Anne has lived for seven years agone, in wold times."

"But tell me what happened seven years ago. Who was this Roger Clavel? Did you know him?"

"'Know'n?' cried the old man shrilly. 'O' course I know'd 'em. A wold widge rascal, and w' the Clavel eyes."

He paused and stared hard at Harry. "Eyes anigh as like yours, sir," he said slowly, with a note of suspicion in his voice. "Bluish black, under black eyebrows, a flashin' like steel; fie wur a bad un' 'e wur! His father, Sir Alan, was quiet, like one of the best of 'em. But his granter, wold Sir John, I mind him well! Every one was a-gar'd on 'em vor miles. He ran away to get married, and he broke the spirit of his son, as w' Sir John after him. But even Sir John wur a match for his grandson, Roger Clavel."

"He is alive?"

"No, no, sir. He's dead these seven years. Death on death came to Crayborne then. First it was the beauty of Lady Anne that made the trouble. Roger was twenty when her father, as wur Earl Newborough, died, and she wur sent to Sir Alan and Lady Clavel at Lyllyngton Court, as her guardians. I mind her as I virst seed her, w' long hair as yellow as gilliflowers, an' eyes as blue as zimmer skies. She wur at school abroad and only home for'n holidays. No school and no college would hold Roger. Her wur allus up to 's pranks, and rantein' houn's to skeer his parents. Lady Anne couldn't abide him. 'Na't a man in Do'et as he well in love w' her, an' I think wick't racketen' Roger Clavel he reure that she should never belong to any man but him."

"How did his parents take it?"

"Oh, parents nidden hold Roger. When Lady Anne wur twenty-one she come into her fortune, an' she chose among the young men who axed in marriage the only son of Mr. Denzil Warne, the master."

"Fribarrow Vale. Vale House belonged once to the Clavels, but the Warnes bought the property; they wur girt at saving as the Clavels at spendin', an' a-

One year, however, I suffered for eight months without interruption, so that I could not do any work at all. The various medicines that were prescribed brought me no relief. After taking six bottles of Peruna, two of Lucania and two of Manilla, I am free of my trouble so that I can do all my farm work again. I can heartily recommend this medicine to any one who suffers with this annoying complaint and believe that they will obtain good results."

allus got the better in a bargain. More'n one quarrel lay between the Warnes and the Clavels. Wold Sir John had run off w' the girl Denzil Warne's father wanted to marry, an' the Warnes an' the Clavels were allus gone to law an' the Warnes winnes. "At Crayborne Church, tith church you see afore you, we rung the bells vor Lady Anne's wedding. 'Twere a day vine an' vair as 'tween. Young Roger had been zeen vor weeks. Mr. Lucian Warne wur as handsome a bridegroom as one mid wish to see, tall and vair as my lady herfur, w' a clear blue eye an' a kind, frank way w' 'em. As they came athir, the churchyard vild zed he was worthy of her, an' Lady Anne looked a queen that mornin' in her gown of satin, w' her face as white as her veil, an' her hair as bright as the sunshine. "Mr. Brooks, the vicar, he come forward to read the service, w' another p'son to help on. The church wur full, but Sir Alan an' his wife w' their friends spoke na't a word to the Warnes and theirs. Bride and groom stood afore the altar, when crack! Athir the church came a pistol shot, an' Lucian Warne fell dead, w' the blood from a wound in his temple stained the satin gown of Lady Anne his bride. "Murdered! How horrible. "No one moved at first. They wur all too dattered and afeard. "Then Roger Clavel came a-stalken' forward w' a pistol in his hand. "I've kept my word," he says. "I said I'd kill 'em. An' cool an' slow, an' a-laughin' to himself, he walks out o' the church. "Surely he was arrested? "Not he! They couldn't find 'em until four days later, when poor Jimmy Collett came upon Roger Clavel on the bridge afore the manor house w'arm at three in the mornin'. Denzil Warne wur a justice of the peace, an' he issued a warrant for Roger's arrest. An' offered five hundred pounds for him dead or alive. But Roger he turned on the bridge an' struggled w' Jimmy, an' when he wur gotten the worst of it he shot an' through the head an' got clean away. Mr. Denzil Warne put up tith stane to Jimmy Collett, and Collett wur wido Jenny, that was newly wed, went mad when they brought his body home. You mid happen to meet her still in the village. Mr. Warne keeps her, an' she's allus a-laughin', an' asigen' or a-weepen, wild like. An wold Stephen Jenson, Sir Alan's steward, that loved the Clavels, he had a fit when he heard the news, an' he's never left his bed since for seven years. They scoured the country for Roger, but they never caught on. An' Denzil Warne, for all Mr. Brooks wur against it, had that monument put up over his son's body w' these words: 'Vengeance is mine; I will repay.' "But his son; what became of the murderer? "A year later in the fall, when the evenen's were adwain's in Annin's the gardener found a dead man's body in the monk's carp pond at Lodars Abbey. It ud been there many months, an' ud never been found but that Lady Anne had ordered the man to clean out the pond. 'Tis by the wold monks' buryen' ground, an' na't a one goes there by day or night by reason that the place is haunted. "But Roger Clavel, he must have crept there to find the hunt zo keen after 'em. He'd blown his brains out w' the same pistol he'd used on the other two, an' his body was buried away in the night time to be borne near his father's grave in the Chapel at Lyllyngton Court. I've seen the stane. Jist 'Roger Clavel,' an' his age an' the date. There is but 'twere enough for such as him. They say the ghost of the abbot of Lodars still walks about the abbey, but he should be content by now, for his curse has taken effect. Not one that is here a Clavel lives at Lodars Abbey, nor at Lyllyngton Court, nor Crayborne Manor House, nor any of their 'd' h'womes. They had the ill luck, you see, to be born bad. Do'et is well rid of 'em, but they wur a fine proud, crook-backed lot, w' the spirit of the very devil, axen' your pardon, an' Croome to me a man of three store an' ten, seems a bit tame an' lifeless w'out 'em. "To be Continued."

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alternative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotics nor alcohol.

The ingredients, as stated under each, are Stone root (Catalpa canadensis), Hooded Mistletoe (Gelsemium canadense), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis canadensis), Queen's root (Squilla virgata), Black cherry (Prunus virginiana), Hensbane root (Nolana lutea), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no drug will irritate the stomach. It shrinks up the red blood corpuscles, but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fever, for the run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy, and refuse all 'just as good' medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

BOWSER'S DECAY.

What the Doctor Ordered and the Result.

IMMEDIATE AND EFFECTIVE.

He Limbers Up His Muscles by Same Vigorous Exercise, Not Forgetting to Take out the Stiffness by Internal Application.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

WHEN Mr. Bowser reached home the other evening his looks gave away the fact that he had some aches on his hand, and all through the dinner hour Mrs. Bowser was wondering whether he had bought a family dog or taken stock in an umbrella which could be carried in the vest pocket when not in use. She waited patiently for his news, and at last he said:

"I don't want to startle you, Mrs. Bowser, but I feel it my duty to tell you something. An aching hand ought to know what the doctor says about me."

"But what can he say about you except that you are in first class health?" she asked.

"DOCTOR DECAY OF THE MUSCULAR SYSTEM ABOVE THE WAIST."

Know, I have suspected it for several months past, but only today have I been fully satisfied.

"You have gone to some quick doctor and let him stuff you with a lot of nonsense. You've got an appetite like a horse, you sleep like a top, and I'd like to see a healthier man than you are. What did the fool of a doctor say?"

"Mrs. Bowser, you are addressing your husband?"

"I know that, and he's got another ad on his hand. I really believe that anybody should come around with a tin horn yowling and try to get up a new toy!"

His impending doom.

At almost any other time those words would have jumped Mr. Bowser a foot high, but on this occasion he remained calm and placid, as if he was a touch of phobos in his bones as he replied:

"Very well, Mrs. Bowser: We will let the subject drop right here. If I die a few years before my time, odds is the difference."

He dropped into a chair and held his hands in his hands, and the cat came in from the front hall and sat down in front of him and looked so mournful that Mrs. Bowser smiled enough to say:

"Well, what did the doctor say?"

"General decay of the muscular system above the waist," answered Mr. Bowser. "I forgot what medical term he used, but that's what it amounts to. Too vigorous action of the heart, combined with lack of exercise, is what has brought it about. I may collapse any day."

"Did the doctor say there was a remedy?"

"Yes; he advised immediate and vigorous exercise—something for the arms and shoulders in particular. I went right out and joined a bowling club, and I thought I'd drop in this evening and roll a few balls. If it wasn't a case of life and death, you know?"

"I see."

"And under the circumstances you won't raise a row about my going out this evening?"

"No. If you have decay of the muscular system you must see to it as soon."

"That's what the doctor said. You needn't all up for me."

"No?"

"It might be a little late for you, if I find my muscles limbering up. I shall keep right at it. Just go right to bed at the usual time and don't worry about my condition. I think I have taken it in time and will come out all right."

The Alcoholic Cure.

It was true that a pain under his shoulder blade had sent Mr. Bowser to a quick doctor and that he had been told to exercise more and set less. He had imagined about all the rest. After getting out of the house he had no guess as to what was under his belt before reaching his club. He was warmly welcomed and was told that the first thing in order was to take a drink. It came out soon after he had swallowed his glass that he was attacked with decay of the muscular system, and by advice he took another. The twenty men at the club that evening were all thoughtful, kind hearted men, and when Mr. Bowser told them the story of his ailment they all agreed that he was ready for bowling they suggested that he have a little something to drink to take the stiffness out of his shoulders. When he rolled his first ball it hurt the end of the alley and knocked a colored boy into the middle of next week and then crashed through a window, and some enthusiastic individual suggested cocktails. His second remained on the alley and jumped over the pins and crashed through a window, and he swung it to and fro and then took a short run and let her go. The action caused him to sit down on the way planks with a jar that shook his teeth in their sockets, and he heard shouts of excitement and enthusiasm as the ball knocked down four pins and a point and followed the ball under the window. When they had assisted him to his feet and all had taken a drink over his miraculous bowling the thoughts suddenly struck him that he ought to go home. He also got it into his head that he must carry the victorious ball with him to show Mrs. Bowser, and as he seemed inclined to be crusty about it he was permitted to have his own way. He departed with a good night and went on one arm and the ball under the other, and half an hour later the sleeping Mrs. Bowser was awakened by a racket which scared her half to death. Some one was moving about on the floor below, and there were hiccoughing and chuckling and giggling. She threw on her wrapper and descended to find Mr. Bowser sitting on the floor and laughing at his own bowling. He was hatless, coatless and vestless, and he was waving about on his legs.

Bowling Extraordinary.

Mr. Bowser was sitting on his legs and seeing twenty-four pins and three or four alleys when he made ready to roll his third ball. He meant to make a knockout. He was in the grip and swung it to and fro and then took a short run and let her go. The action caused him to sit down on the way planks with a jar that shook his teeth in their sockets, and he heard shouts of excitement and enthusiasm as the ball knocked down four pins and a point and followed the ball under the window. When they had assisted him to his feet and all had taken a drink over his miraculous bowling the thoughts suddenly struck him that he ought to go home. He also got it into his head that he must carry the victorious ball with him to show Mrs. Bowser, and as he seemed inclined to be crusty about it he was permitted to have his own way. He departed with a good night and went on one arm and the ball under the other, and half an hour later the sleeping Mrs. Bowser was awakened by a racket which scared her half to death. Some one was moving about on the floor below, and there were hiccoughing and chuckling and giggling. She threw on her wrapper and descended to find Mr. Bowser sitting on the floor and laughing at his own bowling. He was hatless, coatless and vestless, and he was waving about on his legs.

When He Reached Home.

"What on earth are you?" she demanded as she took in the situation. "You look like a me—mountain at the sight he replied as he looked at her blankly. "Now, then, everybody stand aside while I knock down more'n a million pins!"

He stood in the front window and sent the ball rolling and leaping and bounding down the prior after the cat, creating a noise that was up people across the street, and then, with a happy expression on his face, he sank down on the floor and snored.

"Miss Bowser, I'll roll you for or frinks. I will. Shay, you order shoe shone of or shots I made tonight. Knock down this drink, and I'll give you a million pins. Shay, now, that doctor was right—health—bought or life back—wishes for me! Where's or frinks? Where's Miss Bowser? Where's old man Bowser?"

"And so this is the way you go to a bowling club and should come to me, is it?" she demanded.

"How else should I come home? Hain't got or frinks, make 'em live!"

"You have been drinking, sir?"

"Not over thirty-three drinks, Miss Bowser, and every drink helped my muscular system—well wait. You see that cat? And now you see his ball?"

Her idea is to bring or cat and ball together. One—two—three!"

Mr. Bowser fell over a rug and was sent to two minutes. The cat was turned down, and he was left there. He was still slumbering when Mrs. Bowser came down in the morning. As she shook him awake he rubbed his eyes and said:

"Got home late and didn't want to disturb you and so snored down here. When was it I went last night?"

"To a prayer meeting, I believe."

"Just a' been for I feel this morning as if I should live to be a hundred years old."

So Many Shapes Modish That Reblocking Pays.

BROTHER'S DERBY USED.

The Way to Renew Coat in Felt and Straw Models Explained by Woman in the Business—A Freshish Piece of Millinery is the Bird Cage Hat.

"Hat shapes this season make money for women in my business," said a woman who earns a good living reblocking hats, cleaning plumes and freshening millinery trimmings.

"There are so many different shapes that women are bringing out all their old hats and having them reblocked. When only large hats are fashionable or flat hats or round hats there are a number of old shapes that are useless. Now when a patron comes in to consult me about reblocking an old hat I tell her to bring it in. There is certain to be some desirable shape it will do exactly. Besides, all some of the materials are used—felts in the widest variety, velvets and even the plush which was fashionable a dozen years ago."

"Some of the most successful reblocking shapes that I have turned out this season have been plush hats more than twelve years old. I have found that the majority of well-to-do women are loath to throw away any article good of its kind. They realize, with the

fashions changing as they do, that anything which has beauty within itself is apt to come back into style within a few years.

"Reblocking women's hats I have been reblocking men's hats for children. You remember the green velvet hats which a few men wore two or three seasons ago? I have done a number of them over for the small daughters of the men for whom those hats were bought. The men soon tired of them, but their wives stored them away. By simply reblocking, changing the binding and perhaps the addition of only one ornament, she should be smart as bright as any girl could wish and with much better material than most."

"Only the other day I had a young girl come in with an old derby of her brother's. It was a lovely shade of brown. I reblocked it to a shape very becoming to her. No felt, smooth or rough, should be thrown away for years. These never has been a time in my recollection when women could have so many hats and at such a small cost."

"Reblocking costs from 50 cents to five times that much in the average reblocking and cleaning establishment. If a woman goes into the business as I have, doing the work in her home with only one assistant, she should be able to do the hardest hat for $1 and at a fine profit. I also dye shapes in felt and sometimes in straw. The freshish piece of millinery seen in the cut is called by its designer 'the bird-cage hat'—a good name since the foundation is the gold wire, such as traps and cages are made of. Heavy white lace covers the shape and fashions and are of burnt orange satin."

A Kitchen Conventioneer.

For the woman who is her own maid a small semicircular will, after a trial, be found indispensable in the kitchen. This little convenience consists of a drawer, a shelf and a mirror. It should be fastened to the wall in a good light. In the drawer can be kept a brush and comb, face powder, a fresh collar, tie and handkerchief.

When the unexpected caller drops in the housewife's busy day can be broken up by a visitor in a few minutes without wasting time and energy in going upstairs.

"COPEY" OF HARVARD.

The Ideal of the Students, Whom He Bufiles and Charms by Turns.

Assistant Professor of English Charles T. Copey is known as "Copey" by the university and by hundreds of Harvard graduates, and the nickname shows how much he is loved. But there is no one of the teaching force more feared and respected than he.

If you want further proof go to the Union, the great university clubhouse, some night when Copey reads aloud. The dining room is crowded with "sports," "grinds," athletes, dilettanti—two or three hundred of them—the most representative crowd ever gathered at Harvard except for a football game.

They greet him as they would greet one of their classmates suddenly become famous or a newly elected class officer, as some one friendly and particularly of themselves. When he reads their letters are unresponsive of anything else. Kipling, Bret Harte, Shakespeare, Burns, Conrad, Hardy, the Bible, Boswell will take anything he gives them and ask for more.

Yet he has a wonderful gift of knowing what will please the fellows. Sometimes he will read a sermon or one of his own great men he has known or studied or a Christmas sermon or sometimes he just talks.

In between he scores his audience, bullies them, shames them for their ignorance, tells them that they ought to read, grumbles at the light or the stuffiness of the room with such dramatic phrase, such sympathy with youth, that they love it all—American Magazine.

WATER POWER.

Its Wonderful Possibilities For the Generation of Electricity.

While the hydroelectric source of power is still in the beginning of its development, such is the number of natural areas available that no calculation can be accurately made as to the extent to which it will be installed throughout the United States for industries, illumination and other purposes.

We have fairly accurate knowledge of the principal water power, after through the investigation of the geological survey and hydrographic experts. It has been estimated by Professor W. C. Unwin, the total available water power in the United States is more than 30,000,000 horsepower, and that this can be increased to 50,000,000 horsepower by the use of reservoirs. It is estimated that the difference in cost of steam power and water power is $10 per horsepower per year at the minimum. Thus the manufacturing regions of the southern states alone, which are depending on steam instead of water power, would save $200,000,000 per year in the use of the development of the water power at Niagara indicates the possibilities of the manufacture of electricity.

The power that Niagara might generate is estimated by Professor Unwin at 7,000,000 horsepower. The same authority estimates that there is fully 2,000,000 horsepower available in the upper Mississippi, while the southern Appalachian region can furnish a minimum of 3,000,000 horsepower—Cassier's Magazine.

New Views of Mars.

Remarkable photographs of the planet Mars have been taken by Mr. T. H. S. of the Gazette of the Russian observatory at Pulkovo. The superior definition of the new photographs is due to the use of improved plates and colored screens, which have enabled the astronomer to obtain fine contrasts in his pictures. The best photographs of the "canals" of Mars were taken through red and orange screens, and from these, it is claimed, it would appear that the "canals" are filled with water or at any rate something which has a sea green color. Further studies of a similar kind in connection with the polar cap indicate that ice is present there and not snow.

Turkish Cholera Remedies.

The Constantinople correspondent of the London Lancet gives the following Turkish cholera remedies prescribed by the Turkish authorities during the recent epidemic: First, drink infusion of juniper berries; second, carry with you an agate stone or on your neck a stone of hyacinth; third, never fall to have in your pocket a bone of a dead child; fourth, masticate pimpernel, and, fifth, place children in moistened with the moon, drink decoction of laurel fruit when the planet Mars or Mercury is in the ascendant, as these planets are the enemies of the moon.

A not answer has got many a man into trouble.

When a man is a sweetest head he can't help wondering how he never before noticed what a lot of dubs his friends are.

A married man never was known to come home to supper when the real of his wife was an exceptionally good dinner.

Beauty Recipes of French Chemists. The following recipes are formulated used by a noted French chemist:

The woman who lives at home and has the necessary leisure may only heating her little "bain marie" and becoming her own chemist. The busier woman can give the prescriptions to a reliable druggist, who will put them up for her. The orange flower skin food is specially recommended. The hair recipes will fall of their effect if the skin (or scalp) to which they are applied be not thoroughly cleansed first.

The scalp lotions are useless, moreover, if the scalp be tight. In some cases out of ten bath salts could be carried in the vest pocket when not in use. She waited patiently for his news, and at last he said:

"I don't want to startle you, Mrs. Bowser, but I feel it my duty to tell you something. An aching hand ought to know what the doctor says about me."

"But what can he say about you except that you are in first class health?" she asked.

"You have gone to some quick doctor and let him stuff you with a lot of nonsense. You've got an appetite like a horse, you sleep like a top, and I'd like to see a healthier man than you are. What did the fool of a doctor say?"

"Mrs. Bowser, you are addressing your husband?"

"I know that, and he's got another ad on his hand. I really believe that anybody should come around with a tin horn yowling and try to get up a new toy!"

His impending doom.

At almost any other time those words would have jumped Mr. Bowser a foot high, but on this occasion he remained calm and placid, as if he was a touch of phobos in his bones as he replied:

"Very well, Mrs. Bowser: We will let the subject drop right here. If I die a few years before my time, odds is the difference."

He dropped into a chair and held his hands in his hands, and the cat came in from the front hall and sat down in front of him and looked so mournful that Mrs. Bowser smiled enough to say:

"Well, what did the doctor say?"

"General decay of the muscular system above the waist," answered Mr. Bowser. "I forgot what medical term he used, but that's what it amounts to. Too vigorous action of the heart, combined with lack of exercise, is what has brought it about. I may collapse any day."

"Did the doctor say there was a remedy?"

"Yes; he advised immediate and vigorous exercise—something for the arms and shoulders in particular. I went right out and joined a bowling club, and I thought I'd drop in this evening and roll a few balls. If it wasn't a case of life and death, you know?"

"I see."

"And under the circumstances you won't raise a row about my going out this evening?"

"No. If you have decay of the muscular system you must see to it as soon."

"That's what the doctor said. You needn't all up for me."

"No?"

"It might be a little late for you, if I find my muscles limbering up. I shall keep right at it. Just go right to bed at the usual time and don't worry about my condition. I think I have taken it in time and will come out all right."

The Alcoholic Cure.

It was true that a pain under his shoulder blade had sent Mr. Bowser to a quick doctor and that he had been told to exercise more and set less. He had imagined about all the rest. After getting out of the house he had no guess as to what was under his belt before reaching his club. He was warmly welcomed and was told that the first thing in order was to take a drink. It came out soon after he had swallowed his glass that he was attacked with decay of the muscular system, and by advice he took another. The twenty men at the club that evening were all thoughtful, kind hearted men, and when Mr. Bowser told them the story of his ailment they all agreed that he was ready for bowling they suggested that he have a little something to drink to take the stiffness out of his shoulders. When he rolled his first ball it hurt the end of the alley and knocked a colored boy into the middle of next week and then crashed through a window, and some enthusiastic individual suggested cocktails. His second remained on the alley and jumped over the pins and crashed through a window, and he swung it to and fro and then took a short run and let her go. The action caused him to sit down on the way planks with a jar that shook his teeth in their sockets, and he heard shouts of excitement and enthusiasm as the ball knocked down four pins and a point and followed the ball under the window. When they had assisted him to his feet and all had taken a drink over his miraculous bowling the thoughts suddenly struck him that he ought to go home. He also got it into his head that he must carry the victorious ball with him to show Mrs. Bowser, and as he seemed inclined to be crusty about it he was permitted to have his own way. He departed with a good night and went on one arm and the ball under the other, and half an hour later the sleeping Mrs. Bowser was awakened by a racket which scared her half to death. Some one was moving about on the floor below, and there were hiccoughing and chuckling and giggling. She threw on her wrapper and descended to find Mr. Bowser sitting on the floor and laughing at his own bowling. He was hatless, coatless and vestless, and he was waving about on his legs.

When He Reached Home.

"What on earth are you?" she demanded as she took in the situation. "You look like a me—mountain at the sight he replied as he looked at her blankly. "Now, then, everybody stand aside while I knock down more'n a million pins!"

He stood in the front window and sent the ball rolling and leaping and bounding down the prior after the cat, creating a noise that was up people across the street, and then, with a happy expression on his face, he sank down on the floor and snored.

"Miss Bowser, I'll roll you for or frinks. I will. Shay, you order shoe shone of or shots I made tonight. Knock down this drink, and I'll give you a million pins. Shay, now, that doctor was right—health—bought or life back—wishes for me! Where's or frinks? Where's Miss Bowser? Where's old man Bowser?"

"And so this is the way you go to a bowling club and should come to me, is it?" she demanded.

"How else should I come home? Hain't got or frinks, make 'em live!"

"You have been drinking, sir?"

"Not over thirty-three drinks, Miss Bowser, and every drink helped my muscular system—well wait. You see that cat? And now you see his ball?"

Her idea is to bring or cat and ball together. One—two—three!"

Mr. Bowser fell over a rug and was sent to two minutes. The cat was turned down, and he was left there. He was still slumbering when Mrs. Bowser came down in the morning. As she shook him awake he rubbed his eyes and said:

"Got home late and didn't want to disturb you and so snored down here. When was it I went last night?"

"To a prayer meeting, I believe."

"Just a' been for I feel this morning as if I should live to be a hundred years old."

The Last Resort.

Matrimonial Agent—Yes, sir, I think we can suit you perfectly. As our preliminary fee is 5 guineas.

The Client—Five guineas? My dear lady, don't be foolish. I am a poor fellow and I want to marry if I possessed all that money—London Opinion.

A Trifle Supplicious.

"Does your husband play poker?"

"I don't think so," replied young Mrs. Torkins. "That I must say the sick friend is visible in the evening, I saw a small deal of Charles's money."

A Kitchen Conventioneer.

For the woman who is her own maid a small semicircular will, after a trial, be found indispensable in the kitchen. This little convenience consists of a drawer, a shelf and a mirror. It should be fastened to the wall in a good light. In the drawer can be kept a brush and comb, face powder, a fresh collar, tie and handkerchief.

When the unexpected caller drops in the housewife's busy day can be broken up by a visitor in a few minutes without wasting time and energy in going upstairs.

"Hat shapes this season make money for women in my business," said a woman who earns a good living reblocking hats, cleaning plumes and freshening millinery trimmings.

"There are so many different shapes that women are bringing out all their old hats and having them reblocked. When only large hats are fashionable or flat hats or round hats there are a number of old shapes that are useless. Now when a patron comes in to consult me about reblocking an old hat I tell her to bring it in. There is certain to be some desirable shape it will do exactly. Besides, all some of the materials are used—felts in the widest variety, velvets and even the plush which was fashionable a dozen years ago."

"Some of the most successful reblocking shapes that I have turned out this season have been plush hats more than twelve years old. I have found that the majority of well-to-do women are loath to throw away any article good of its kind. They realize, with the Reblocking women's hats I have been reblocking men's hats for children. You remember the green velvet hats which a few men wore two or three seasons ago? I have done a number of them over for the small daughters of the men for whom those hats were bought. The men soon tired of them, but their wives stored them away. By simply reblocking, changing the binding and perhaps the addition of only one ornament, she should be smart as bright as any girl could wish and with much better material than most."

Reblocking costs from 50 cents to five times that much in the average reblocking and cleaning establishment. If a woman goes into the business as I have, doing the work in her home with only one assistant, she should be able to do the hardest hat for $1 and at a fine profit. I also dye shapes in felt and sometimes in straw. The freshish piece of millinery seen in the cut is called by its designer "the bird-cage hat"—a good name since the foundation is the gold wire, such as traps and cages are made of. Heavy white lace covers the shape and fashions and are of burnt orange satin."

The Institute Meeting

The Farmers' Institute meeting which was held on Monday afternoon the 5th inst. in the I. O. O. F. was well attended, not only by the men of the community but the ladies and school-boys were out in goodly numbers. Chairman H. H. Magee in his opening remarks called the attention of those present to the pressing need of a large membership for the Agricultural Society of which he is the President.

After the close of the meeting quite a number responded to his invitation and cheerfully handed over the requisite amount of $1.00 for the support of this worthy object. Miss Trench then addressed the meeting in a very able manner on the subject of Poultry.

Miss Trench demonstrated clearly that she is a Past-master on the subject of poultry. At the close of her remarks, it was moved by Mr. L. N. Casey, and seconded by Mrs. R. Annett, that a hearty vote of thanks be extended Miss Trench for the very interesting address.

To say that this was responded to with enthusiasm is putting it very mildly. Mr. Hutton, Supt. of the Experimental Farm, Lacombe, then addressed the meeting on Dairying, and his remarks were followed with untiring interest until their conclusion, where a vote of thanks was tendered the speaker for his able address, moved by Mr. M. L. Boyle and seconded by Mr. Thos. Fitzgerald, after which the meeting dispersed, advised of the fact that they had spent a profitable afternoon.

WONDER

One of the many leading lines handled by the

Cockshutt Plow Co.

Unrivalled for taking wild cuts of wheat. Has 15 sizes all made in steel sheet iron. The screens differ in the shape and size of the perforations to take all kinds and sizes of grain, wheat, barley, oats and flax. The screens do not rust nor spread like wire, and permit of great accuracy in gauging the size of the perforation even to one sixteenth part of an inch. Other important features are the internal arrangement of the screens which keeps wild oats lying flat as they will be screened out, the complete arrangements for regulating the feed, the wind, and the shafts of the upper and lower shoes. Going to variation in the size of the wheat berry in different seasons and localities, two sizes of wheat screens are made. Those for plump, full sized wheat are provided standard and are supplied with mill unless the slightly smaller mesh is specially required and ordered.
All "Wonder" mills are furnished with extra barley gear included in the price, whereas, with other makes, they cost extra.
